Introduction

Welcome to Pimsleur's Hebrew 2!

Since Hebrew is written in the Hebrew alphabet, to read Hebrew you need to associate the sounds with a different system of symbols than the Latin alphabet. A complete listing of the Hebrew alphabet can be found starting on page 3. This is for your information only: you will not need the list to be able to read Hebrew since all of the instruction is on the audio.

In Hebrew, the major vowel sounds are: ah, eh, ee, o, and oo. Some vowels are represented by more than one sign. The reason for this is that in ancient times there were more vowel sounds than there are today, and the various forms of transcription have been maintained even when there is no sound difference. And there is also a punctuation vowel, called schva, which is sometimes silent.

There are twenty-two consonants in the Hebrew alphabet, written with thirty-one letters. As in the case of vowels, there are some letters which in Hebrew sound alike, but which originally were different sounds. This is especially true in the case of some guttural sounds which are no longer pronounced gutturally in Hebrew.

There are two letters which are silent and serve as vowel carriers. There are two letters which have a different sound when a dot is added. There are five letters which have two forms: one form when written at the beginning or middle of the word, and another form when written at the end of the word. Having different letters for the same sound may cause difficulties in spelling, but not in reading.

Hebrew script does not normally include vowels and consonant dots, called dagesh chazak. These are only included for beginning readers, in poetry, and in the Hebrew Bible, and are otherwise used only when it is necessary to avoid ambiguities of meaning. As of the second grade in elementary school, Israelis are able to read without vowels, by guessing the correct pronunciation. In this booklet, the vowel and consonant dots are included, so you won't have to worry about guessing.

Reading Lessons

Reading is a critical part of learning and understanding a new language, but it may be for different reasons than you think. If you're like most people, you learned to speak your native language well before you learned to read it. You learned reading later, and it's a different type of language skill, which uses a different part of your brain. The symbols you see on a page—the alphabet—are a sort of shorthand for the sounds they represent. Inside those sounds is where meaning actually lives. Not only is reading a piece of a language puzzle; learning to read also gives you a chance to learn a language from a different direction than the way you're learning to speak in the audio lessons. This combination approach will help you build a solid bridge toward fluency.

In Level 1, you acquired the sounds of your new language and learned about the impact that a symbol, an accent, or stress has on pronunciation. In Level 2, you'll continue to practice sounding out words on sight and reading for meaning, at the same time expanding your vocabulary. You'll also continue to isolate sounds that run together in the spoken language—sounds that you couldn't quite catch through listening alone—and you'll begin to notice patterns in words that will help you create a mental web of understanding. This is the natural progression that Dr. Pimsleur intended in all of his language courses. Translations are provided for each lesson, although we recommend that you look at the translations only after doing the lessons.

Don't be afraid to push yourself with your pronunciation and accent. Be dramatic and have fun! The closer you can get to the native speaker's pronunciation, the more authentic your experience will be, and the more easily you'll remember what you've learned.
